En.com.sg Team:

You are wrong again, at the www.sgnic.sg is also visible, from [How do I check whether the name I intent to register is available for registration? ], It also stated that you should add a domain name query after www.whois.com/whois/ to see if it is registered first?

And all .sg domain names the same must also be governed by ICANN regulations. Still more already been registered those domain don't need to be verify again. No matter how foolish a person all to understand, yes or not?

And from www.sgnic.sg/verifiedid%40sg.html that [Why do you ask the administrative contact instead of the registrant itself to verify the identity of the registrant? ] can to see, I this registrant is need not to be verified, unless you tell me in that www.sgnic.sg has a special web page that needs to be verified, or else you cannot ask me to find in www.sgnic.sg, yes or not?

We are sorry that without verification, SGNIC will not allow us to renew as we has tired earlier today. We have attempted to renew for you multiple times but failed. Sad to say that the domain will expire when the expiry date has reached without the verification.

You can try to login to the Verify@SG web portal to see without clicking on verify button, you will see your domain listed there pending.

You may want to contact ICANN for assistance if you insist that SGNIC is not allowed to block your domain name.
